ABOUT THE EVENT

Every time you present to someone it forms an impression, giving you the potential for gain or loss. Being an effective presenter is increasingly important in the workplace. As technology advances our uniquely human qualities of engagement and interaction remain our key point of difference. Research shows 70% of us see presentation skills as critical for career success and 75% of us say we would like to be better at presenting. Is a lack of effective presentation skills impacting your professional and organisational excellence? Whether you are preparing for a one-on-one presentation, a small meeting, presenting to the board or delivering to a conference audience, and no matter where you are in your career, presentation skills are critical to success.

This full-day interactive presentation skills workshop, delivered by Executive Leadership Coach Garry Mills will provide you with the practical tips, tools and strategies to plan and deliver an articulated and competent presentation. You'll learn how to handle presentation fears and nerves, and how to understand your audience, discover how to open and 'hook' an audience to listen, and how to choose, plan and structure your content, and develop strategies for handling Q&A and making a memorable impression.
